

MCCANDLISH PHILLIPS JOURNALISM SCHOLARSHIP

The King's College is offering up to four $3,000 per year McCandlish Phillips Journalism Scholarships to incoming freshmen majoring in Journalism, Culture and Society.

STUDENT ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

- Be accepted for admission to The King's College for the Spring of 2018
- Be enrolling full-time in the Journalism, Culture and Society major
- Be graduating high school in 2018

SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENTS MUST

- Maintain a 3.0 GPA
- Contribute to the Empire State Tribune or
- ESTv each semester
- Remain enrolled in the Journalism, Culture
- and Society major

HOW TO APPLY

Email three published clips and a 500-word personal statement answering the question "How can some-one be both an excellent journalist and a committed Christian?" to phillipsjournalism@tkc.edu. For questions about the scholarship or program, email pfreeby@tkc.edu or pglader@tkc.edu.

THE JOURNALISM CULTURE AND SOCIETY MAJOR

Students who major in journalism, culture and society at The King's College prepare themselves for careers in the news media and related industries by learning to report and write news, feature stories, opinion pieces, cultural criticism, and other formats. They also study the history, ethics, legal issues, and theory related to journalism. This training coupled with internships and student media experience helps students land their dream job.